GREECE PREPARES TO ENTER WAR

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE FIRE-SWEPT SECTION OF HAMPTON BEACH

Looking north from B street, where the blaze started, showing the breadth of the fire path. At the right is the beach boulevard, where were located most of the hotels and theatres destroyed. Dynamite and a fortunate shift in the wind probably saved the entire community from being wiped out.

GUARD AT BEACH RUINS

Fire Chief Ring of Hampton Beach, N. H., today received information tending to show that the fire which devastated the beach last night, destroying nearly $250,000 worth of property, was set by a man whom the police of Massachusetts and New Hampshire cities characterize as a "professional firebug."

As a result an immediate and vigorous investigation was set under way. Police from Portsmouth and Manchester were summoned to assist in the work. Inquiries were addressed to Massachusetts police officers who know the record of the suspected man.

The early belief that the fire was started by children playing carelessly with matches has been abandoned. Chief Ring now feels sure that the house from which the conflagration started was deliberately set afire.

The suspected man, it is understood, owns a cottage at the beach.

Firemen and volunteer guards today watched the ruins of cottages and hotels valued in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars which went up in smoke last night.

The burned area extends from B street to Highland avenue and from the beach boulevard to the marshes behind.

Six hotels, two theatres, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Ring's dance hall, and over fifty cottages were today only smoking ruins. The fire destroyed practically every amusement

Mrs. Bruguiere's Body Washed Ashore

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Sept. 24.—The remains of Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere, an American woman who lost her life when the Arabic was sunk by a German submarine, have been recovered. The body was washed ashore at Castle Freke and was identified today by the United States consul at Queenstown.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—A dispatch from Vienna reports the death of the Prince of Thurn and Taxis. He was killed Monday on the Sereth River front, the dispatch says.

RED SOX OPEN LAST SERIES AT HOME

By RIGHT FIELD.

The Red Sox, right at the top of their form, open the last home series of the year at Fenway Park today, when they meet the St. Louis Browns in the first of a trio of games. Nothing but a win today, tomorrow and Monday will satisfy the Sox, for they are in a rush to get to the goal where they can, if they wish, lose every day and still go into the World's Series.

Dave Stallings' Braves are engaging in their second clash at Pittsburgh today, going into it with a record of eleven won and nine lost on the road trip.

The Carrigans, having further strengthened the position at the top, which they have held since early in July, are out today to show Branch Rickey's crew how the seventy-year-old pastime should be played.

The Sox have ten games left to play, excluding the two knocked out by Tuesday's rain, and if they win only half of them they will still have 102 wins for the season. Jennings would have to drive his Tygers beyond the speed limits to even tie that mark.

"Babe" Ruth will probably be sent after today's game, with Gregg or Collins in reserve. The roguish Rickey has Koob and Hamilton available.

In the city of smoke top place hopes still persist in the minds of the Braves. Stallings will send in either Tyler or Nehf to land him a victory, while Fred Clark makes no scruples of saying that Adams or Kantlehner are like as not to give the Braves a lively run.

FLAG CONCEDED TO RED SOX BY JENNINGS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—Under the big banner head "Jennings Concedes Pennant to Red Sox," this evening's Star prints the following interview with Manager Jennings of the Detroit club:

Hughey Jennings and his Tigers are here to play five games with the Griffmen. The genial leader of the Tigers has about given up all hope of landing the pennant this year.

"It is true the race is not yet over. There is a remote chance for us still, but it is much like two racing horses in opposite directions and the one going the wrong way expecting to have its number hung up," is the way Hughey sized it up.

"Had we been hitting up to our standard in the series at Boston, we would have won easily enough. We had good pitching and played just as good ball as the Red Sox, but we could not get the hits when they were needed, and that beat us.

"When Chicago was running out in front, a lot of folks thought they would make a runaway race of it, but the White Sox never gave me any worry, for I knew that the dangerous team was the Red Sox."

Death of Convicted Chicago Detective

CHICAGO, Sept. 24. — William J. Egan, former detective sergeant of this city and who was dropped from the force yesterday as a result of his conviction on charges of accepting bribes, died suddenly at his home today. Egan, who was widely known as "Big Bill," had been a member of the detective force for years.

Schooner Sinks Off Hyannis in Lightship Crash

HYANNIS, Sept. 24.—The three-masted schooner Minnie Slauson, out of New York for St. John with coal, sank early today off Hyannis, after a collision with the Handkerchief lightship.

Captain E. B. Dixon and the crew took to the boats and rowed to Hyannis.

Captain Dixon tried to work her back to Hyannis. There was a southwest wind at 45 miles, and a heavy sea. By the time the schooner reached the Bishops and Clerks lightship, she was waterlogged and unworkable.

MOBILIZE FORCES OF GREECE

By International News Service.

ATHENS, Sept. 24.—Greece is mobilizing her army and navy.

King Constantine this afternoon issued a royal decree calling twenty classes to the colors.

At the same time a manifesto was published calling the Greek Parliament into session.

These steps were taken as a result of the war preparations of Bulgaria Greece being bound by treaty to aid Serbia in the event of a Balkan conflict.

The mobilization decree was promulgated after a conference between King Constantine and Premier Venizelos. It had already been signed, but the King and Premier again went over the situation before it was issued.

The railroads have been taken over by the government. Troop trains are already moving.

The order of mobilization includes the navy. All officers of the Greek warships on shore are returning to their vessels.

Minister of War Danglis and General Dousmanis, chief of staff, are directing the movement of troops.

All reservists of Greece have been recalled to the colors. Those now residing in Italy will reach here first.

RUSSIANS DRIVE BACK TEUTONS

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Field Marshal von Mackensen's army has been forced to retreat before the Russians in the region of Logoschin.

The Czar's forces in the district, which is north of Pinsk, suddenly launched an enveloping movement that put Von Mackensen's forces in a dangerous position, and they were forced to withdraw from the east and northeast of Logoschin.

Today's report of the general staff also admits a minor victory for the Russians at Vilaka. While the retreating Russians were proceeding along the Lida-Petrograd railway they turned upon their pursuers and in the fighting which followed took several cannon.

The official report claims further success for Field Marshal von Hindenburg before Dvinsk and for Prince Leopold of Bavaria, farther to the south. It announces the recapture of the villages of Rose and Strigge, together with more positions before Dvinsk. The Germans took one thousand prisoners.

Prince Leopold's army has broken the resistance of the Russians along its entire front, the report states. It

MOBILIZATION OF ARMIES NOW ORDERED BY GREECE

An official announcement of Greek mobilization reads:

"In view of the steps taken by Bulgaria it is incumbent on the Hellenic government to mobilize."

The Chamber of Deputies will meet tomorrow and vote funds for the military establishment. Many members had already been notified that Parliament would soon be reconvened and had already arrived here.

The war strength of the Greek army is between 250,000 and 300,000 men. Most of them are veterans of the Balkan wars, in which Turkey and subsequently Bulgaria were decisively defeated.

KING MAY LEAD ARMY.

If Greece is forced into the war King Constantine is expected to take the field. The King was in command of the main Greek army that participated in both Balkan wars.

Greece has been strengthening the fortifications at Salonika, the city which was in dispute between Greece and Bulgaria in the first Balkan war, when armies of both nations raced to occupy the city, the Greek forces winning by a narrow margin.

There are 40 principal warships in the Greek navy, two of them former battleships in the United States navy, which were sold to Greece several years ago. In the event of Greece's participation the Greek navy undoubtedly will be utilized to help the allies at the Dardanelles.

A British mission has been superintending the reorganizing of the Greek army, and now that Greece's participation in the war on the side of the allies is imminent, this mission probably will be kept here.

BULGAR SHIPS SEEK SHELTER.

Diplomatic circles here have been informed that Bulgarian warships, which were stationed at Varna, on the Black Sea, have sought shelter in a neighboring bay. Large numbers of men are work at feverish speed to fortify Bulgarian Black Sea ports. The valuables of the branches of the National Bank at Burgas and Varna have been removed to Sofia.

The belief has been expressed in Bulgaria that if that country stayed herself on the side of the Teutonic allies, Russia would attempt an invasion through the port of Varna, thirty hours' sail from Odessa, although it is strongly fortified.

NEARLY MILLION AND HALF OF MEN READY FOR BALKAN DRIVE

By PERCY THOMAS.

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Nearly a million and a half men are expected to take part in the great drive of the central powers into Serbia with the aim of relieving the pressure against Turkey at the Dardanelles.

The Germans, according to news from Nish, have massed 800,000 men on the Serbian front. Austro-Hungary probably will furnish 400,000, while the Bulgarian army, rapidly mobilizing, will add 250,000 more unless the allies succeed in their eleventh hour attempts to hold back King Ferdinand.

Today's advices from Bucharest indicate that Bulgaria is about to strike at her former ally, Serbia. One dispatch says:

AUSTRIAN REVERSES.

"The situation is most critical. Requisitions of all kinds are being made by the Bulgarian War Office. Bulgarian cavalry is massed on the Serbian front. Infantry divisions are being sent to the concentration points with all speed."

A report from Salonika that Bulgaria had cancelled its mobilization order was unconfirmed during the forenoon and was given little credence.

The situation on the Galicia fronts gave some measure of hope to the allies, however. The Austrians admit that their forces in Volhynia have retired to the Styr River, while on the Italian front the Austro-Hungarian troops have evacuated their position on Monte Coston.

It is the opinion of British observers that these Austrian reverses are bound to have a deterring effect upon Bulgaria, unless an irrevocable decision has already been reached by that nation.

Revelations made in dispatches to the Paris Temps show that threats against the personal safety of Czar Ferdinand have been voiced to the monarch himself by prominent party leaders if he plunges his nation into war as an ally of Germany.

The Temps dispatches purport to give details of the audience which King Ferdinand gave to the leaders of the opposition parties on September 17. According to these reports Malinoff, the Democratic leader, said to the King:

"A government policy of neutrality or of alliance with Germany would bring disaster to Bulgaria. Like Belgium, the country would become a battlefield whereon French and British troops would be disembarked. Macedonia would fight alongside the Serbians."

RUSSIANS REPORT BIG VICTORY OVER AUSTRIAN FORCES

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 24.—Reports from the front state that the forces of General Ivanoff and General Brusiloff won a great and complete victory over the Austrians in Volhynia yesterday.

Resuming their offensive on the Styr and Ikwa rivers, the Russians are said to have broken the Austrian front, taking several thousand prisoners, while east of Lutsk Russian forces defeated the Austro-German troops, forcing them to evacuate important positions and retreat across the Styr, with the Russians in pursuit.

Mighty efforts are being made by the Russians to outflank Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army at the northern end of the battle front.

The Russian War Office in an official statement made public early today dwells upon the ferocity of the fighting southwest of Riga.

Villages are continuously changing hands. One height was captured, lost and recaptured six times.

A German aeroplane that bombarded Schlock, on the Gulf of Riga, fifteen miles west of the city of Riga, was compelled to descend beyond the German trenches.

On the southern end of the front Russian cavalry is successfully engaging the Austro-Hungarian forces.

The text of the official Russian follows:

GERMANS FLEE STOUNGA.

"A German aeroplane that bombarded Schlock was forced to descend beyond the German trenches.

"The Germans were compelled to flee from Stounga, on the Eckau River, abandoning quantities of munitions.

"Fierce fighting has commenced at Kala in the Neugut region. Villages are continuously changing hands.

"In the vicinity of Stenses seventeen officers and one hundred German of the rank and file were taken together with a maxim gun.

"In the Amielir region violent hand to hand fighting is in progress. One height changed six times. We captured two maxims and twenty men.

PURSUE AUSTRIANS.

"Northwest of Dubno, despite the efforts to halt the Russian offensive through counter attacks, we have occupied Wolnitsy, on the left bank of the Ikwa River, capturing twenty-eight officers, 1,400 men and three Maxim guns.

"In the Dworets region, and southwest of Kremlenitz, during the occupation of a mountain height, we took two officers and 100 men.

"In the district north of Sealeschyki the enemy has been repulsed from Worwolintx and Chinkowitz.

"Russian cavalry pursued and defeated the Austrian forces, killing some and capturing others.

"Continuing their operations our cavalry advanced on Prussy, southwest of Tluste, in the region between the Dniester and Serech Rivers, in Galicia. In the subsequent fighting we captured both prisoners and war munitions."

ROME PAPER CALLS ON ALLIES TO HALT THE TEUTON'S BALKAN PLAN

By International News Service.

ROME, Sept. 24.—"The European war shifts to the Balkans today," says the Idea Nazionale, in commenting on Bulgaria's war preparations.

"Germany is endeavoring to precede the allies to Constantinople in a new way. The only means of securing the Balkan States' friendship is intervention with large military forces to block the German march on Constantinople and crush separately the German and Bulgarian allies."

"Bulgaria's mobilization," says the Tribuna, "means an attempt to wrest Macedonia from Serbia. We consider it the duty of the Quadruple Entente to intervene and frustrate the Bulgarian plans."

GRAND JURY DRAGNET MAY SEEK SLAYER OF JUDGE KNOWLES

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 24.—"John Doe" proceedings will, it is believed, be instituted by the Providence County Grand Jury, now in session, in an effort to find the murderer of Judge Willis S. Knowles, who was slain from ambush Labor Day, while on his way to open court.

The will of the slain jurist will be probated today before Judge H. C. Dubois, at the Knightsville Court House. Horace G. Knowles, a brother of the judge, was appointed custodian by Judge Dubois. After his appointment as administrator, Mr. Knowles said he would settle the affairs of his brother after his return from New York, where he is going immediately after the court adjourns.

It was learned today the late Judge paid all his outstanding bills by check, Friday and Saturday before Labor Day.

"In looking over my brother's papers, I find that all his bills were paid just before Labor Day, which leads me to believe he had a presentiment that something was going to happen," said Mr. Knowles.

SHERIFF PUSHES PROBE.

Sheriff Andrew J. Wilcox is in possession of evidence that Judge Knowles told a close friend his will and his private papers were in his safe, should anything happen to him.

Investigations are being made by the sheriff which lead to the scene of the murder. With Edwards eliminated, the clews point to a neighbor who has maintained his innocence.

Repeated conferences with Attorney-General Herbert A. Rice are said to be significant, and it is believed Sheriff Wilcox has asked the attorney-general to call certain neighbors before the Grand Jury where, it is said, they will be asked to make plain certain stories told Providence inspectors that are not believed by the sheriff.

"John Doe" proceedings will give the Grand Jury the right to subpoena any person thought to be able to throw light on the murder of Judge Knowles. It is this plan, friends of the sheriff say, that is under discussion by the attorney-general.

Unable to get a tangible clew which would warrant arrest, and with Governor Beeckman watching the progress of the investigation, "the murderer of Judge Knowles must be brought to justice," say State officials.

Horace Knowles, brother of the judge, said today many could point at the murderer of his brother. But without evidence at hand, the only solution of the mystery is for the Grand Jury to question everybody that might have any knowledge of the case.

Should such proceedings be instituted, and it is firmly believed they will, the crime will be fastened on one or two suspects after they have told their story.

An arrest will follow and the State will proceed to prosecute with the circumstantial evidence gained from such proceedings.

The pin worn in the judge's tie found here and believed to have been hit with the assassin's bullets, is now said to have been twisted by handling the body when found on Hopkins avenue Labor Day.

Sheriff Wilcox believes he will solve the mystery in a few days. "I am unable to make my plans public at this time, but you can rest assured we are reaching a solution every day and will have the murderer of Judge Knowles behind the bars, where he belongs, in short order," said Sheriff Wilcox today.

Lynn Man Burned Smoking in Bed

Herman Knothe, thirty-two, a machinist, awoke early today in his room at the Hotel Boyden, No. 282 Union street, Lynn, to find his bed in flames and his nightclothes also ablaze. For five minutes he struggled to put out the fire before summoning help.

Firemen quickly extinguished the fire. Knothe was taken to the Lynn Hospital suffering from burns on the shoulders, arms and side and slight burns on other parts of the body. He will live.

He was smoking a cigarette just before retiring.

depends almost the entire effect of your suit.

A wrongly chosen coat will make a short man look stumpy.

It will make a tall man look lanky.

It will make a well-bred man look like a lumberjack.

Almost the entire difference between the "MONROE," "ONTARIO" and "SAXON" models is in the cut of the coat—but these three are chosen from a dozen or more, each for a different type man—one of whom is YOU.

Filene salesmen know which coat is yours. They will show you in a jiffy if you will let them.

There are around Boston a great many men who would like to pay only $15 for their suits but pay $15 believing that the day has gone by when $15 buys anything worth-while suitwise.

And the man who from choice or necessity picks $15 as his suit-price is invited to see what we have in store for him—not alone in wide choosing, not alone in worthy woolens (for this price), but in styles which are identical with those at higher prices.

KILL POLICEMAN IN N. Y. GANG FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—George Dapping, a policeman in plain clothes, was fatally wounded and James Bishop, another plain clothes man, was so seriously shot that it is believed he will die, as the result of an attempt of a gang to break up the outing of the Thomas J. McManus Association at the Manhattan Casino, in Harlem, early today.

Dapping, shot just below the heart and near the right eye, was taken to a hospital, unconscious, and died a few hours later. Bishop was shot in the right shoulder and may die.

In addition to the policemen, Daniel Tynan of No. 159 West Fifty-Second street, a civilian, was shot in both legs and is in the Knickerbocker hospital. The police believe that others were shot.

With 5,000 persons in the building an argument was started in the bar in the front of the building. Soon a score of men were engaged in the fight, the contestants surging through the building and out into the summer garden.

Women and children became panic stricken as a man, who afterward gave his name as Thomas O'Neil, drew a revolver.

In quick succession more than a dozen shots were fired.

Patrolman Mooney, on duty outside, rushed into the building and sent in a riot call.

O'Neil attempted to escape over a back fence. He turned on Mooney, who was in pursuit, but the policeman felled him with his night stick.

Vatican Pays Tribute to Late Bishop Conaty

By International News Service.

ROME, Sept. 24.—Remarkable tribute was today paid at the Vatican to the memory of Bishop Thomas J. Conaty of Los Angeles, who died recently. Cardinal de Lai, prefect of the Consistorial congregation, whose chief duty is the appointment of bishops, announced that Pope Benedict XV. had said a prayer for the soul of the late prelate.

"Heartfelt regret was caused by the news of the death of Bishop Conaty, which reached the Vatican yesterday," said Cardinal de Lai.

"The Holy Father remembered him in his prayers.

"I knew Bishop Conaty for many years and his record as a priest, rector and bishop is one of the noblest. When he became a candidate for the Los Angeles diocese, the congregation elected him without a dissenting voice. His was a saintly life, wholly devoted to his church and the spiritual welfare of his flock. The church loses an indefatigable worker and a model priest. His premature death ends a noble existence nobly spent."

LOWELL, Sept. 24.—Mayor Murphy and Charles E. Wood and Frank M. McCarthy of the American Federation of Labor, in charge of the strike who himvolves nearly 5,000 men.

TWINS WELCOME AT MALDEN'S "CORNER"

The arrival of a new set of twins at the corner of Milton and Salem streets, Malden, in the only remaining corner house of the four there that does not possess a pair, has put Malden on the map as the one and only city in the United States with an original "twin four-corners."

The new arrivals are Lillian Gertrude and Beverley Frances Whalen, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Whalen at No. 844 Salem street.

Directly across Salem street, from the Whalen pair, live Vernon and Velman Newman, seven, brother and sister, twin children of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Newman; directly across Milton street from the Whalen home are Jesse Ethlyn and Lillian Harvey Ames, nine, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Ames, and diagonally across from the Whalen house are Gerrish and Martha Kingman, seven, twins of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kingman.

The mother of the new twins admits that she gets her two daughters mixed because of their close resemblance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames, across the street, frequently scold Jesse, one twin daughter, when they should be scolding Lillian. It usually takes a blue and a pink ribbon fastened to the hair of the two sisters to make identification certain.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingman haven't so much worry about their twins because one is a girl and the other a boy. It is much the same in the Kingman family, though the resemblance of brother and sister in both families caused confusion before the children were out of long clothes.

Twin corners is not overrun with children; just the ordinary number of children of a quiet neighborhood live nearby. No other twins live in the vicinity and none have been born there for some time.

Why the stork should single out the corner houses for "pairs" instead of aces remains a mystery to the neighborhood, though the parents of the four sets of twins, to "a man," are pleased to be the ones to make Malden famous as the original "twin-four-corner" town.

It has been suggested that the Four Corner Twin Association be formed at this famous street intersection and that other twins and their parents be taken in.

LEGISLATIVE PROBE IN N. Y. DISASTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A thorough investigation into the causes of the disastrous Seventh Avenue subway accident was started today by the Thompson Legislative Committee, now delving into the dual subway contracts.

The announcement of this new investigation was made by Senator George H. Thompson, chairman of the committee.

At the same time District Attorney Perkins announced that he and Coroner Feinburg had secured permission from the Supreme Court to appoint independent experts to make a survey of the scene of the disaster, to be used at the investigation by the county.

John D. Gives Nephew 6 Cents to Put in Bank

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—John D. Rockefeller left Cleveland after a two months' stay and went back to Pocantico Hills, his New York estate.

His last act on the platform of the East One Hundred and Fifth Street Station of the New York Central Railroad was characteristic.

Solemnly shaking the hand of his three-and-a-half-year-old grandnephew, little Edward Roberts, he drew out a handful of coins—the majority of which were bright, new pennies—and gave the child a penny and a nickel.

"Goodby, Edward," Rockefeller said. "Be a good little man and put the money in your savings bank."

EXPECT SECRET INDICTMENTS IN MOHR CASE

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 24.—The Providence County Grand Jury may bring in secret indictments against Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr, George W. Healis, the chauffeur, Cecil Victor Brown and George W. Spellman charged with plotting to kill Dr. C Franklin Mohr on August 31, while on the way to his Newport villa. Eighteen witnesses appeared before the Grand Jury and twelve depositions were taken in the case.

It is believed the State will ask that the hearing, called for September 30, before Judge Frank H. Hamill of Warren, be continued and that captaises will be served on the defendants for their appearance before Judge Elmer J. Rathbun, where they will be bound over on the Grand Jury indictments.

ROCKEFELLER TO PUT BAN ON MINE UNION

By International News Service.

TRINIDAD, Col., Sept. 24—There will be no dealings between the Rockefeller interests in Colorado and the United Mine Workers of America in the future. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his associates who are making a tour of inspection of the mining districts in this State, made that clear today in a declaration of the plans that will be followed in the management of the mining properties.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., also made it plain that no union man would be discriminated against because of his affiliation with the miners' organization. At any time, he said, any miner with a grievance could make a complaint to any official of the mining companies and if he desired, appeal his case to Mr. Rockefeller himself.

With the announcement that the open shop is to prevail in the mines and steel and iron plants in Colorado, the financier also announced that he planned the expenditure of a large amount of money to better the living conditions of the miners. Mr. Rockefeller said his plan had been determined upon as the best for the workers, after he had obtained first hand information on the conditions under which the men are working and living.

UNION TO BE IGNORED.

The plan that takes no consideration of the miners' union contemplates a system of representation, under which employes can take up their grievances without fear of being discriminated against, even though they appeal from the sub-bosses direct to the general managers and presidents of the companies. All employes, under Rockefeller's plan, will be dealt with as individuals, and each employe will be given an individual rating. Meantime they will be permitted to organize as Rockefeller employes, though without affiliation with the United Mine Workers of America.

Mr. Rockefeller last night danced in a little schoolhouse at Cameron, 2,800 miles from Broadway, with Mrs. Charles Kaiser, the pretty wife of the mine superintendent. Mr. Rockefeller glided over the none too smooth floor to the strains of "Tipperary."

As Mr. Rockefeller was leaving the boarding house at Lester, where he had lunched with a crowd of miners and company officers without having taken time to wash the accumulated dust of a long, hot ride from his face, he was greeted by a negro miner just from the pit.

"Mr. Rockefeller, this is Willie Hood," said B. J. Mattison, assistant general manager of the company.

WORKER ASKS PENSION.

Hood, after greeting Mr. Rockefeller, recounted at some length that he had been an employe of the company twenty-two years and asked for the promise of a pension when he had served twenty-five years.

"I think you and I will go on a pension about the same time," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller had his first meeting with David Griffiths, who was selected as the company's mediator when the plan of dealing with labor grievances through representatives of the men was inaugurated several months ago.

At House Rockefeller announced that he wanted to confer with Griffiths in the presence of the labor representatives. So the pit boss was ordered to find Mitchell, who was working a mile inside the mine. Mitchell was produced and the conference began.

Rockefeller, coatless and with his hat pushed back, shot questions at Griffith and Mitchell in turn.

"How do you happen to be grievance representative of the men?" he asked of Mitchell.

TALKS WITH GRIFFITHS.

"They elected me," replied the negro, grinning.

"How did they elect you?"

"At a mass meeting."

"Any company officer there?" asked Rockefeller.

"Oh, no."

"How do the men feel—free to come to you with any complaint they have against the company?"

"Yes."

"Do you sometimes find that the foreman or the pit boss has been in the wrong and treated a man unjustly?"

"Oh, yes, and when they have I go to Mr. Griffiths and he fixes it up."

Mr. Rockefeller whirled on Griffiths.

"Do these grievance representatives ever try to take anything over your head to the president of the company?" he demanded.

"They never have yet," replied Griffiths. "Usually the grievance is adjusted with the superintendent without reaching me."

"How do these complaints reach you?"

"Well, I go from camp to camp myself and talk to these grievance representatives," said Griffiths.

"Don't you wait for them to send for you?"

"Not on your life, I don't. I hunt them up and ask them if anything is the matter between them and the supers. That's what you hired me for, isn't it?"

"Look here," he flashed, turning to Griffiths, "do you make any distinction between union and non-union men in settling the grievances appealed to you by the miners?"

"I certainly don't," replied Griffiths. "We treat all the men treated alike as long as they are willing to work and behave themselves?" persisted Mr. Rockefeller.

"Yes," Griffiths answered.

Leaves Fund for Educating Needy

GREENFIELD, Sept. 24.—The death of Mrs. Esther M. Warner, widow of Amon K. Warner, brings to light a bequest of the estate of Mr. Warner. The estate is valued at $64,000, the interest from which is to be used in educating needy American boys and girls of Greenfield between the ages of fourteen and twenty years. Mr. Warner died in Bethpage, Falls on April 15, 1886, following injuries received in a train wreck at Bardwells Ferry a week before.

ALLIES' BILLION MAY BE CUT IN HALVES

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—I am in a position to make the following statements concerning the proposed American loan to Britain and France:

The terms of the loan have been thrown into the melting pot.

The amount of the loan has been frittered down to $500,000,000.

Russia will not be associated with the issue in any shape or form.

It is by no means certain the terms will be agreed upon.

Therefore, there is a possibility that the negotiations will fall through, although this is declared by insiders to be most unlikely.

Indignation is expressed in banking local and out of town financial circles at the whole method of handling these negotiations.

The Anglo-French commission have built a Chinese wall about themselves which bankers complain, can be scaled only by J. P. Morgan and those associated with him.

Lord Reading, chairman of the commission, is said to have seen one or two members of so-called German banking firms on the quiet, but a majority of substantial bankers at the heads of bond firms have been denied all occasion to take part in discussion of the loan.

Even Sir Edwin H. Holden, although having many banking friends in New York as well as in the South and Middle West, has not once been seen in the financial district visiting important bankers—with the exception, of course, of Mr. Morgan and his partners.

So far the negotiations have been wholly between the British delegation and the fiscal agents of the British government, a circumstance which is beginning to excite severe criticism. Morgan & Company, it is commented by those shut out from the daily powwows of the inner circles, are in a position of endeavoring to raise a loan to pay for goods they themselves assisted to order.

J. P. Morgan, it is remarked, are a national bankers, although the loans he asked must be handled, banks point out, chiefly by the 7,700 national banks throughout the country.

Open hostility to the loan is developing in outside quarters. Following the first of a series of anti-loan mass meetings held by the American Truth Society last night, letters protesting against the loan have been sent to President Wilson, State Treasurer Wells, Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of this city and many other publications. These were signed by G. S. Mead of the American Truth Society. Another mass meeting will be held by this society in this city tonight.

Charles P. Hall, vice-president of the American Hide and Leather Company, with a score of plants in New England, came out today in an interview in favor of the proposed loan, saying that New England interests are for it because it would help New England industries.

Pope Is Urged to Try Afresh to Gain Peace

ROME, Sept. 24.—Pope Benedict has received fresh requests that he use his influence to bring about preliminary discussions to effect peace.

The suggestions that he use his influence to bring about a preliminary discussion come from authoritative quarters, with the additional remark that he need not hesitate because from all official sources come declarations that peace is now impossible, as this is being done to conceal the real situation and feelings.

THREE KILLED IN NEBRASKA TRAIN CRASH

By International News Service.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 24.—Three persons were killed and a score or more injured, some dangerously, when Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 704, bound for Kansas City, collided head-on with a freight train near Plattsmouth today.

Both engineers and the brakeman of the freight train were killed.

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENED AT WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Sept. 24.—Worcester was threatened today with a general strike of the 9,000 machinists in the city unless an eight-hour day and a five-cent-an-hour increase are granted by the machine shops.

J. H. Gilmore, organizer of the strike at the Whitcomb-Blaisdell Company and the Reed-Prentice Company, where 1,100 men are out, announced that formal demands would be presented today to the Morgan Construction Company and the Heald Machine Company, and that unless these demands were granted the 400 men in the these plants would be called out.

"We intend to push these demands in every machine shop in the country," Gilmore said, "and unless the men get what they deserve we will call every one of the 9,000 machinists in the city out on strike."

MORE HARD LUCK FOR CITY HALL EDITOR

Some miscreant has "swiped" the Harvard football season ticket of Standish Wilcox, editor of the Boston City Record and social secretary (ex-officio) to Mayor Curley.

Wilcox's editorial sanctum is next to the Mayor's outer office. People, particularly politicians, come and go, usually seeking the favorable notice of the editor.

Wilcox expected his football ticket in the morning mail. Not finding it, he mentioned the circumstance casually to the letter carrier.

The mail gentleman said: "Why, I left that ticket letter for you on your desk with other mail. I noticed the return label on the envelope."

Up to press time Wilcox had been unable to find anyone around City Hall who knew anything of the missing ticket.

HANLEY CLAIMS FLYER LOST HIM VOTES

Dr. James P. Hanley of No. 22 Highland street, Roxbury, one of the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for the Senate in the Seventh District, Wards 18, 19 and 22, "was swindled out of the nomination by an eleventh-hour flyer and contemptible political trick," according to a statement made by the doctor today.

Dr. Hanley, former representative P. Joseph McManus and Senator James P. Timility, were the candidates. Timility won the nomination. The vote was: Timility, 2,733; McManus, 2,218; Hanley, 1,317. Hanley is now being urged to run as an independent on election day. He says he is giving the matter serious consideration.

"I was the victim of a most contemptible political trick," said Dr. Hanley. "I campaigned in Wards 18, 19 and 22 the night before the primaries and was given splendid receptions. I made my contest on clean-cut issues and would have won were it not for the lying phraseology of what I term an eleventh-hour flyer, which read:

> Sept. 20, 1915.
> MR. VOTER!
> HANLY
> NOT IN > SENATE FIGHT.
> VOTE FOR
> McMANUS
> AND DEFEAT
> TIMILTY.
> —PATRICK DONOVAN.
> No. 41 Leon Street.

"The flyer was yellow. I have since learned there were 20,000 of them printed. The label number was stricken off, but I know where they were printed. I know the man who gave the order. I know the conversation that took place.

"A friend of mine saw the impression of the type on the press. That was how I came to know the author of the flyer. The catch in the phraseology, Hanly Not in the Senate Fight, shows the workings of a trained political mind. I spell my name H-A-N-L-E-Y. The E was left out.

"I believe in fighting fair. So do the voters in these wards, those who are not subservient to the dictates of a master. The issuance of that flyer in the interest of any of my opponents was very unfair. I intend to bring that fact home to the minds of the voters.

"My reason for fighting this unfair method is to let the voters of the district know that I entered the contest to win and not to withdraw. I was never a quitter, and never will be. The impression intended to be conveyed by the flyer was that the signer was Patrick F. Donovan, chairman of the Ward 22 Democratic committee, my personal friend.

"I consider the trick an outrageous attack on the rights of American citizenship, an affront to the many friends who supported me in the past and an injury to the Democratic party."

The court announced that speeding in jitneys must stop, especially to and from Nahant, must stop.

Henry J. Perry and Lee Curry, both of Lynn were fined $10 each for operating without having a jitney license.

TIRED PEOPLE FIND BEER A MOST BENEFICIAL BEVERAGE

MORE—and more—are people being converted to the idea that beer—drunk with the meals—or when one is tired and thirsty—is excellent for the health.

Prof. Moleschott says:—"A good beer is as nutritious as fruit. A good beer partakes of all the advantages of the alcoholic beverages and at the same time fully quenches the thirst by its abundant amount of water. Hence, beer is particularly adapted to satisfy the form of thirst caused by bodily exertion."

Knowing the food value of beer it is no wonder that our aim is to be the leader in producing this product. We use Imported Bohemian Hops exclusively and the best of malt in the brewing of Harvard Green Label Beer—and insist that it is aged fully four months before leaving the brewery. REMARKABLE SCENES OF THE HAMPTON BEACH FIRE AT ITS WORST

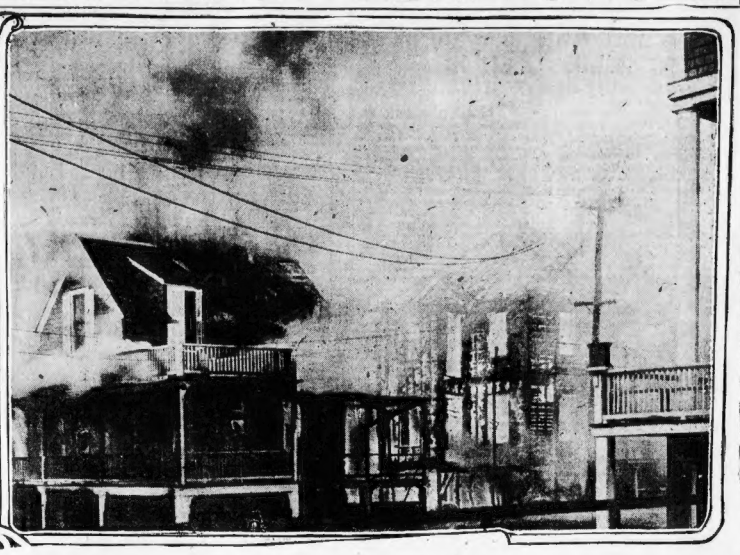
The Strand Theatre on the boulevard in flames, from a photograph taken just as the fire reached the Fairview Hotel, which was also destroyed.



The house on B street, owned by Garland and Humphrey of Haverhill, a mass of flames when the photograph was taken, where the blaze started.

60 HAMPTON BEACH BUILDINGS ARE SWEPT AWAY BY FLAMES

place and store, with the single exception of the Casino, which was situated 200 feet or so to the south of the place the fire started.

DYNAMITE IS USED.

Fanned by the brisk southwesterly wind, the flames advanced rapidly, practically unchecked by all that the Hampton Beach fire department could do with their hose or the dynamite from Applecrest Farm, Hampton.

Three different times Walter B. Farmer, dynamite expert, who rushed an auto load of the explosive from his farm to the beach, blasted out a wide avenue across the path of the flames. Each time the blazing embers were carried across these dynamited areas to the cottages beyond.

With the arrival of help from the fire departments of Portsmouth and Haverhill, and later from Amesbury and Exeter, a determined stand was made at Highland avenue, almost in front of the Hampton Beach fire department quarters.

SAVED BY WIND CHANGE.

In spite of this concentration of fire apparatus, the fire would have continued, only temporarily checked, but for a fortunate shift in the wind to westerly. This carried the rain of burning brands to sea.

Checked in its northerly advance the fire slowly burned itself out, but not before it had worked slowly back into the teeth of the wind, to Marsh avenue.

BUILDINGS BURNED.

The buildings destroyed were:
Apsworth Hotel.
Janvrin Hotel.
Fairview Hotel.
Grandview Hotel.
Lawrence Hotel.
Pleasant View Hotel.
Olympia Theatre.
Strand Theatre.
The Delancy House.
The Glendon, owned by Janvrin Brothers of Haverhill.
Clark's bathhouse.
Owen J. Boston's confectionery store.
Graves pharmacy.
L. C. Ring's store.
The Wilfred cottage.
Florence Dearborn's cottage.
Eben Currier's cottage.
Emma Hamilton's cottage.
Louis R. Hovey's cottage.
Six cottages of Dennis Mahoney.
Frank James' cottage.
Many smaller structures.

LOSS MAY BE $250,000.

Estimates of the total damage, made by insurance adjusters, who flocked to the fire, varied from $200,000 to $250,000. Many of the cottages were uninsured on account of the almost prohibitive insurance rates, due to the lack of adequate fire protection.

The fire department at the beach is an emergency arrangement. Water is secured from high pressure hydrants. After an hour, during which practically everyone on the beach with even a garden hose was drawing on this water supply, the high pressure service collapsed, unequal to the many drains on its supply.

As near as can be discovered, the blaze started in a B street cottage owned by Garland and Humphrey of Haverhill.

Mrs. M. C. Moore discovered flames licking up the sides of the cottage. She immediately spread the alarm, running out into the boulevard and calling for help.

EMBERS FIRE THEATRE.

If a stream of water, even of garden hose size, had been brought into use at once, the flames might have been checked at the first cottage. Most of the cottages near had been closed, and no one thought of breaking into any of them in a hunt for hose.

By the time Mrs. Morse herself thought of the garden hose, the fire in the first cottage had gained too much headway. Besides, she had her own cottage to save. With her own garden hose she did manage to save her house, although everything around it burned.

From the blazing cottage the flames leaped to the pharmacy owned by H. F. Graves of Concord. While the drug store was still smouldering in the crisping heat from the Garland cottage, blazing embers fired the Strand Theatre, owned by Goldstein Brothers of Worcester.

From these three burning buildings showers of sparks shot up, to be spread along the beach by the southwest wind. Nearly every spark that landed on a building started another fire.

With every building of wood, with no adequate fire department to oppose the advancing flames, it seemed as if the entire beach was doomed.

HELP IS CALLED.

Fire Chief L. C. Ring immediately telephoned for help to Portsmouth and Haverhill. Motor apparatus was rushed over the road to the beach, arriving in time to be of great service. Later additional help was secured from Amesbury and Exeter.

While awaiting the arrival of outside help the men and women at the beach set to work with buckets carrying water from the ocean, with garden hose, and even with shovels. Where water was scarce sand was used instead. But the combined efforts of these volunteer fire fighters made scarcely any impression on the fire.

From the Strand Theatre the flames leaped to the two-story building occupied by Garland & Murphy as real estate offices, and then to J. S. Garland's cottage.

The Janvrin Hotel, a two and one-half-story wooden building of about fifty rooms, was the first large building to break into flames. Soon after the Lawrence House, close by a little smaller than the Janvrin, also caught.

FLAMES JUMP STREET.

The flames then jumped across C street, sweeping over the two cottages of J. E. Sussman, the Clark bathhouse, and the long, one-story wooden pavilion, owned by L. C. Ring, and used as a dance hall. In the rear of the dance hall was Chief Ring's big double cottage house. This went while the chief himself was at the other side of the fire, trying to organize some effective fire force.

At the Olympic Theatre the first desperate stand was made. Some organization had been effected, and the volunteers had hopes of checking the blaze. The heat, however, was so terrific that the firemen were driven back before they could get into effective use the few lines of hose they had ready.

Sweeping toward the ocean the fire took in cottages, five stores and the Grand View Hotel. At Marsh avenue, at the back of the beach, determined work by volunteers saved the cottage of E. H. Wentworth of Haverhill.

The fire, in leaps and bounds, then took in the block in which was the grocery store, cafe and boarding house of C. J. Jenkins, four small cottages owned by Mrs. Ina Potts and took in the Pleasant View Hotel that it is practically useless to go before the Licensing Board with remonstrances, and that the present board has adopted a policy of "scattering" licenses into districts where most of the residents are opposed to them, are opinions which were expressed by the Rev. George Luther Cady of Dorchester, at the convention of the W. C. T. U. in the First Baptist Church.

LICENSES ARE 'FIXED,' SAYS DR. CADY

That transfers of liquor licenses are "arranged" by professional "fixers."

"I do not know of any section of the country," said Mr. Cady, "unless it be Tammany-ridden New York City, where the public sentiment on the liquor question and the actual achievements in controlling the sale of liquor are so far behind the West as right here in Boston. The liquor interests are the dominant power in politics, and there is an open alliance between the liquor and labor interests. The labor unions—and I believe in them, love them and want to help them prosper—are under stultified, if not corrupt, leaders, who have surrendered to the liquor interests.

HARVARD IS TO HEAR ABOUT CONFUCIUS

Professor Unokichi Hattori of Japan has just arrived at Harvard. He is to be the first man ever to teach the doctrines of Confucius in an American university.

He is now occupying the quarters of Professor Asoaki, who lectured on Buddhism at Harvard last year, at No. 24 Ware Hall, Cambridge.

Professor Hattori is to give two chief courses in Harvard this year. One relates to Confucianism today, as a political and moral influence among the Japanese. He says that many Japanese are followers of Confucius in some respects and of Buddha in others, thus making it impossible to draw the line between the followers of the two prophets.

"Confucianism is not really a religion," he explained. "It concerns chiefly politics and ethics, rules of conduct. It is a mistake to call it a religion, Buddhism, on the other hand, is a religion, with its multiple rituals and spiritual beliefs. Thus it is easy to combine the two. You have no parallel to this in the West, among your various religions."

The other course which he will give relates to the life and times of Confucius, and is less modern in its bearing. Dr. Hattori will remain at Harvard for the entire year. He seemed to think it particularly worthy of note that for the first time Harvard should have a Catholic professor of philosophy in Dr. de Wulf, and a Japanese professor of Confucianism, and both in the same year.

WOMAN WANTS $5,000 FOR HORSE BITE

Mrs. Simi Nahon was in the equity motion session of the Superior Court before Judge Walt. She is the plaintiff in a suit for $5,000 damages against Jacob Sillovitz, alleging that a vicious horse belonging to Sillovitz and carelessly permitted to be upon the public street March 30, 1915, attacked her violently and bit her upon the forearm, inflicting painful injuries.

The hearing was on the motion of Sillovitz's attorney, Samuel Sigliano, that his client be released from the $1,000 attachment upon his property. After hearing the attorney's statement, Judge Walt released Sillovitz upon his filing a bond for $1,000 with sureties.

A QUICK, SURE WAY TO END CATARRH

Wonderful Medicated Air Quickly Kills the Germs and Makes Your Stuffed, Catarrhal Head Clear as a Bell.

Catarrh is caused by a germ and these germs thrive for up in the passages of your nose, throat and lungs where no medicines or ointments can ever reach them. Before you can get rid of Catarrh you must get rid of the germs which cause it. The best way to kill catarrh germs and drive them from the system is to breathe up into the nose, throat and lungs the pleasant smelling, but powerful medicated germicidal air called Hyomei, which is formed by combining the pure healing oil of Eucalyptus with powerful germicides and healing agents that utterly destroy every catarrh germ they reach. You breathe Hyomei far up into your nose and throat through a little hard rubber inhaler which all leading druggists furnish with the complete outfit. This penetrating air not only kills the germs but it soothes and heals the sore, swollen, inflamed membranes, stops the discharge, spitting, hawking, etc., clears up the head and air passages and makes breathing easy again. Breathe it five minutes and you'll get blessed relief. Breathe Hyomei a few minutes daily for just a few weeks and every trace and symptom of catarrh will vanish. This isn't mere statement, it's a proved fact and Moore-Jarvis Drug stores and most every leading druggist in this vicinity will tell you that Hyomei is guaranteed to give your money back if you do not get from it the relief you're seeking. Hyomei is pleasant and easy to use. You'll like it. And it certainly does put a stop to Catarrh as nothing else will or can.—Advertisement.

Resents Tune of Tipperary by Kicking in Drum

The regular service of the Salvation Army in Scollay square was disturbed by a man who objected to "Tipperary" being played by the musicians as the gathering sang a hymn set to the music of that air.

The man's object of attack was the big bass drum, upon which a member of the army corps was pounding zealously at the time. After repeated futile attempts to kick holes in the drumhead, the man was arrested.

When booked at the station house the man said he was thirty-eight and an Austrian by birth. There were ten letter in his name which the police refused to give out because he was simply booked as a plain, ordinary "drunk."

TUFTS STUDENT AND WELLESLEY GIRL ELOPE

Roy C. Brett, a student at Tufts College and son of Mrs. A. J. Brett of South Braintree. She is twenty and he is twenty-four. This Summer Mr. Brett worked in the Hopkinson leather factory.

They eloped, as the bride admitted today, because her parents would not have consented to the marriage. The Hopkinsons were particularly anxious for their daughter to complete her college work, also they thought her too young.

The first known of the marriage was a brief announcement in a Weburn local newspaper. It caused a flutter in that city, where Mr. Hopkinson is a wealthy manufacturer.

SON OF DR. BRETT.

A. J. Brett, who had an extensive practice in the Braintrees and was one of the best-known physicians on the South Shore. He went to Technology two years, then to Tufts. He is back at Tufts now completing a course in mechanical engineering.

The bride, with blue eyes dancing, told about the elopement today at her mother-in-law's home in South Braintree. She said:

"I met Roy two years ago here in South Braintree. He came to work for papa this Summer as a 'boiler.' This has to do with some delicate operation in the treatment of leather.

"September 1 Roy got through at the factory to return to Tufts. He had no trouble with papa. But we decided to get married. We didn't want to wait. We went quietly up to Brattleboro Vt., on Saturday, September 11, and were married.

PARENTS "PROVOKED."

"My parents didn't know anything about it until we telegraphed mamma from Brattleboro. Yes, they were rather provoked, but they had no objection to Roy. But papa wanted me to finish college and he thought me too young. I am twenty.

"Why did we go away without telling them? Well, my parents wouldn't have agreed to our marriage and that was the best way of doing. We came back to South Braintree. Yesterday I went to my home and everything was all right. Roy is going to Tufts and we shall stay here until he is through there."

An expressman came with a package for the bride. She started for the package, writing her new name, "Mrs. E. Brett," as though quite used to it by this time.

DANIELS DENIES STATEMENT OF DUMBA

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today took direct issue with Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austrian ambassador. He emphatically declared that the ambassador was entirely in error in his claim that the wireless station now under control of navy department censors refused to send to Vienna the message in which Dumba made his explanation regarding the letter on which President Wilson acted in demanding his recall.

"At no time have the naval censors held up any messages that either the Austrian or German ambassador desired to send to their home governments," said Daniels. "I know that every message tendered by Ambassador Dumba was sent forward."

This latest issue between the ambassador and the United States has added to the feeling of irritation against Dr. Dumba in official circles.

REQUEST IRREGULAR.

While officials refuse to discuss the status of the ambassador they point out that his action in requesting the State Department to arrange for a safe conduct for himself through the war zone on the ground that he had received a personal message to report in Vienna while this government still was without any answer to its demand for his recall was at least irregular.

It would have justified the immediate handing to the ambassador of his passports, officials say. But there is growing belief that Dr. Dumba has overreached himself in his efforts to create a situation that would seem to give him the advantage in the diplomatic interchanges and it will depend entirely on the tone of the Austrian official reply to President Wilson's recall demand whether the administration will order sent to the Austrian representative going home "On leave to report."

Acting Secretary of State Polk positively refused today to comment on the Dumba situation. He was told that Dr. Dumba had sent a message to Vienna complaining that he could not communicate freely and urging that quick action be taken on his request for recall.

NO MOVE BEFORE REPLY.

The acting secretary said that he knew nothing about the matter, but that any action which Dumba might take would have no bearing on this government's plans. It will make no move whatever to secure safe conduct for Dumba until an official reply is made to the communication handed to the Foreign Office by Ambassador Penfield, which set forth why Dumba's usefulness in this country was at an end.

The American minister at Berne is trying to get word through from Penfield showing the reason for the delay, but so far the department is in the dark.

If any effort is made in Vienna to haggle over the matter officials close to the administration say it will be resisted in every way.

Claim New Primary Ballots Not Secret

Many voters since the recent State primary, complain that the ballot ought to be made more secret if a voter is to be fully protected while voting with the new primary sheet. The sheet was so wide that voters claim it was easy to see the men as they stood in the stalls, and easy to see whether they were voting on the Democratic or Republican side of the ballots. Intimidation and surveillance, it is claimed, could be brought into play with the use of these ballots, unless there is a protection placed behind the voters as well as on the sides of the booths.

Mr. Kinnear says he loves nature, and in his second matrimonial venture, he wants everyone in Clinton to attend.

What Happened to Jane

A Splendid New Serial by Virginia Terhune Van de Water

"I hope," she ventured timidly, "that Mr. Reeves was not angry because I did not go out with him and father."

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1913, Star Company.

CHAPTER I.

THE Sunday evening service was over in the Dutch Reformed Church in the little village of Milton.

Jane Hardy had sat near the door and was among the first of the worshippers to go out into the fragrant June night. But swiftly as she had come out, Ned Sanderson was awaiting her on the front steps. She felt her heart beat with pleasure and a sudden shyness as he stepped forward and greeted her, his hat in his hand.

"May I walk home with you?" he asked with boyish frankness.

She looked back over her shoulder into the church down whose aisle the congregation was now moving slowly.

"Father is here," she said hesitatingly, "and he may expect me to wait for him."

"Well, I'll go in and tell him that I'm going to see you home safely," Sanderson volunteered.

The bashfulness common to the country lads to whom Jane Hardy was accustomed was not a characteristic of this fellow. She wondered now if his lack of embarrassment was due to the fact that he was what the young people here in Milton called "a city chap."

Touching her elbow lightly, he drew her to one side of the vestibule, apparently unconcerned by the stares of the passers-by who nodded and smiled to him and the girl. He bowed pleasantly to them all. This was the second Summer to which he had made occasional visits to Milton. Last year he had spent his two weeks' vacation here. This year he had run out every few weeks for a Sunday. This was one of these visits. He would return to town and to work tomorrow.

On his stays in the village he had taken in everything—church socials and picnics included—and had been "hail fellow well met" with everybody. But he had paid especial attention to no girl except Jane, and to the bucolic mind this meant that the pair were "keeping company." Just what that term signifies is vague. It is not, we are told, equivalent to a betrothal, nor, apparently, can it be defined.

NOT AN ENGAGEMENT

In the present instance it certainly did not signify an engagement, but, so far as the observer could judge, admiration and devotion on the part of the young man and an acceptance of these on the part of the girl. Her blush just now simply meant diffidence under the gaze of her friends and neighbors.

"I'll go and tell your father," Ned Sanderson repeated.

But as he started to do this the object of his interest appeared in the doorway of the church, accompanied by a middle-aged man, younger than himself, yet wearing an air of pompous dignity that added to his apparent age.

Ezra Hardy, Jane's father, was a New Jersey farmer, with the tanned face and parchment-like skin common to the man who has lived much in the fields and in the heat of the Summer sun. He was gray haired, and his back was slightly bent. Yet he had evidently been a good-looking man in his day, and one could see that his daughter got her gray eyes and straight nose from him. Her slight stature, brown hair and fair skin were inherited from her mother.

"Good evening!" said Mr. Hardy genially, in response to Ned's greeting. Then he turned to Jane with an affectionate smile. "I was just looking for you, Janie," he told her. "Mr. Reeves was asking me if you were here and I told him you was probably waiting, and he said he would walk along home with us. He wants to speak to Mr. Evans for a minute first and then we'll come right along."

Before Jane could reply, Ned interposed quickly, yet politely.

"Miss Hardy has just accepted my escort to her house," he said. "So I will see that she reaches there safely."

A shade of disappointment crossed Ezra's face, and his companion drew his dark brows together.

"I am sorry," the latter said to Jane, "that I am not to have the chance of a chat with you. But perhaps I can see you later at your home."

A PERFECT EVENING

"Thank you," the girl returned. Then, obeying Ned's touch upon her arm, she added "Good night," and went with him down the church path to the street.

It was a perfect June night, and the moon cast long shadows across the quiet village street. The elms on each side joined their branches overhead and the light filtering through the leaves made white blotches on the road. The air was fragrant with the smell of honeysuckles growing over the fences of the parlor the young couple passed.

Ned Sanderson drew in a deep breath of enjoyment. "This is some night!" he exclaimed. "I'm sorry you don't live two miles instead of a half-mile from the church."

"I hope," the girl ventured, timidly, "that Mr. Reeves was not angry or displeased because I did not go with him and father. But," with a little laugh, "I'm glad I didn't. He bores me—Mr. Reeves, I mean."

"I should think he would!" returned Ned, gratefully. "The old chap's got all his nerve with him, paying attention to you the way he does. I suppose he's looking around for a second matrimonial venture. Oh," as she murmured a protest, "you needn't pretend not to know that he'd marry you to-morrow if you'd take him."

"Ned!" exclaimed the girl. "He never suggested such a thing to me!"

"Because he's too cautious to ask you unless he's sure you'd have him. But,"—stopping suddenly in the road and looking down at her, "you wouldn't marry him ever—would you, Miss Jane?"

"Good gracious, no!" she exclaimed. "I tell you he never asked me. Silly! he's years older than I am!"

"I heard a man say the other day that Reeves is considered a very good catch," Ned remarked dryly. "And he's steady, too, my informant says. He's a deacon in the church, and, what cuts more ice, is a very prosperous farmer."

"Not one who just makes enough to live on, like poor father," the girl commented with a touch of bitterness.

"Your father's worth a thousand of old Reeves!" declared her companion stoutly. "I mean when you count worth in character."

"Father's worth a million of him if you count it that way!" she corrected. And then both laughed like light-hearted children.

In Our Wonderful World

THE life story of an eel still remains very largely wrapped in mystery, but by degrees more and more is being found out about it.

It is now known that its breeding grounds are the mid-Atlantic, but at what depth has yet to be discovered. The young or larval eel remains in the sea for a year, during which time it eats nothing whatever and grows thinner and thinner as it grows, perhaps hundreds and hundreds of miles, to the mouth of some fresh-water river.

By the time it has finished this great swim the eel is as thin as a visiting card and entirely transparent, except for its two black and shining eyes. But from then on it begins to change into the black, snake-like fish with which most of us are familiar.

Eels all die after the first spawning of from fifteen to twenty million eggs, but nobody knows how. For no adult eel ever remains in rivers or streams, nor do any ever come in from the sea, so that the complete history of the life of an eel seems likely to be a mystery for some time.

Interesting experiments have been made in the German army with the object of discovering what distance the recognition of one soldier by another is reliable. For soldiers with good eyes it was found that a person seen once before could be recognized at a distance of eighty feet, while an acquaintance could be recognized at a distance of 200 feet, and an intimate friend or relative at a distance of 500 feet. The various parts of a man's body can be distinguished and any decided movement can be detected by an expert rifleman at a distance of 300 feet.

At 1,500 feet a man appears as a spot on the landscape and cannot usually be seen if he keeps still or if his dress does not contrast with the background. Sailors, hunters and farmers can usually see twice these distances, probably on account of their constant training in making out the nature of distant objects.

The first mesrachaum pipe, it is believed, was made by Kaved Kowafes, an ingenious shoemaker, of Peath, Hungary. He was skilful in carving wood and other material. This brought him in contact with Count Amtrasky, with whom he became a great favorite.

The Count, on his return from a visit to Turkey, brought with him a piece of whitish clay, which had been presented to him as a curiosity, on account of its light specific gravity.

It struck the shoemaker that, being porous, it must be well adapted for pipes, as it would absorb the nicotine. The experiment was tried, and Kaved carved a pipe for the Count and one for himself. This first mesrachaum pipe, made and smoked by Kaved Kowafes, is still preserved in amuseum at Pesth.

Judging Your Friends

Be Sure You Are Not Too Hasty, for Thus You Condemn Yourself

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"JUDGE not, that ye be not judged." How many of us are familiar with that quotation from the Book of Books? How many of us practice it?

Hasty judgment reflects never so much on the person you condemn as on yourself. In every human relationship there come many instances when one friend has the choice between giving to another the benefit of the doubt or judging and condemning him on the evidence in hand.

If the case were put to you and you were asked, "If everything looked black against a friend, what would you do—sit coldly aloof in majesty and form your judgment without offering a chance of defence? Rush to the friend under suspicion and revile and abuse without waiting to hear the defence? Or go quietly to the suspected individual and tell him that you had heard things which reflected very much on him, but that you wanted to hear his side of the story before you formed your judgment?"

The first course is as self-sufficient as unfair, the second is as cruel as cowardly, and the third represents the only fair, decent and honorable thing to do. But too small a proportion of human beings practice the third course.

"Oh, yes," you will say, "but who wants to be the dupe of his own weak liking for an untrustworthy and unreliable individual? Who wants to be made a fool of? Who wants to be betrayed by a friend and then go to that Judas friend and say, 'Explain this as you can and as plainly as you may—I'll listen and believe.' Who wants to accept disloyalty so meekly and humbly as to invite a repetition of it?"

HOW ABOUT YOURSELF?

Have you never been guilty of an impulsive action that set fire a chain of dangerous circumstances? Have you never said something in all good faith to A which by the time it had passed from mouth to mouth through an alphabet of individuals to B looked as if you hadn't been quite fair to that person?

Perhaps B, C, D and E unconsciously exaggerated the story in telling, perhaps one of them had a grudge against you, perhaps one of them used you to gloss over some offence of his own.

Would you not have thought it cruelly unfair of F to put you down as disloyal and unfriendly, worthy merely on the strength of what he had heard and oft-repeated tale? Of course you would. But if the case were reversed are you sure that you would give F the benefit of the doubt?

LIKE OWN NATURE

Every time you sit in judgment on a friend and condemn him on heard you are practically acknowledging that you are capable of disloyalty! None of us can conceive of anything that lies absolutely outside of his own nature. If you can suppose that any one has lied to you it is because you are capable of lying. Our conception of the world comes as much from our own natures as from the outside.

Before you judge a friend, judge yourself. If you can think in terms of disloyalty, untruth and unfairness, those qualities lie in you. So you give to another the benefit of the doubt and allow for the fact that he may be acted unwisely. It may have been with decent motives, you must guard against not one whose own motives are decent and kind.

Whenever you judge cruelly and unkindly you judge first of all yourself, and then the criminal you condemn unheard.

A Smart Answer

The following episode took place in a country village in the north of England. One morning, as a schoolmaster was proceeding to his school, he saw a penny. He picked it up, he placed the penny in his pocket and after the children had assembled in the school he addressed master said:

"Has any child lost any money?" After a few moments a small boy in the front of the class put up his hand.

"Well, Robert, what do you want?" asked the master.

"Please, sir, I have lost a penny," replied the boy.

"And where did you lose your penny, Robert?" inquired the master.

"Please, sir, where you found it."

Robert got the penny, amid the laughter of the master and the whole class.

Man's First Artistry in Clay

Unique Figures Modelled by a Phidias of the Paleolithic age

After Max Boscow in "L'Anthropologie."

Representations in clay of male and female bison, found in the Tuc d'Audoubert cave, near Saint-Girons (Ariege), France. The figures are each about two feet long and are the only known examples of clay-modeling dating from paleolithic times. Except for the cracks due to drying of the clay, the broken tail of the cow and the horns of the bull, the figures are in perfect state of preservation.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I DO not think that there are many things in this world better worth looking at by a thoughtful person than two clay models, or statuettes, made by a prehistoric sculptor, in a cavern on the French side of the Pyrenees, which is locally called the Tuc d'Audoubert. These models represent two bisons, a male and a female. They are about two feet in length and were found attached to the wall of the cavern in its innermost recess.

They are in profound darkness there. Only he who has seen artificial light, far from the outer world of sunshine, in an underground place so difficult of access that only courageous and determined explorers will crawl, face downward, through the wet, sticky approaches, in which a fat man might get fastened like a tight cork.

When found by their original discoverer, Count Begouin, the entrance to the natural gallery in which they lie had become so obstructed by huge white pillars of stalagmite (limestone formed by deposition from slowly dripping water), that he had to break a way through.

The fact alone startles the mind with a sense of the extreme antiquity of those clay figures. It takes many centuries for any tree to grow, but the oldest and mightiest tree is a new-born baby in comparison with stone!

You can observe the age-long process of making limestone in many caverns, where water is still dripping down. You hear in the gloom and stillness a musical tinkle, like the stroke of a little silver bell. It is a drop of water falling upon a stalagmite, which has been built up by similar drops. In that drop there is an almost infinitesimal quantity of carbonate of lime. The drop dries up and the carbonate of lime is deposited, adding an invisible layer to the stone. The drops must fall in slow succession, else they would run away and not evaporate on the spot, and no stalagmite pillar would be built up.

Can you imagine anything slower than that work of rock building? We have no certain measure of its slowness, but, nevertheless, there does happen to be at least one very interesting, example which gives us a clue. In Kentis cavern, England, you may read on top of a dome-shaped mass of stalagmite these words: "Robert Hedges of Ireland, February 20, 1688." The drops of water that formed that rock have not ceased to fall since the inscription was made by a visitor, 227 years ago, and how thick do you suppose the film of transparent limestone covering the inscription has become in that stretch of time? One-twentieth of an inch.

At that rate it would require 4,540 years to make a layer one inch thick, and 54,480 years to make a layer one foot thick! But the stalagmites that blocked the way to the corner gallery in the Tuc d'Audoubert, where the ancient Stone Age sculptor modeled and left his clay bisons were several feet in height. Probably they were started long before the cave men began to live in the cavern. But they must have grown a foot or more in order to obstruct the place as they did.

So we have, as a possible measure of the time elapsed since that rude artist escaped from his labors, 20,000 or 100,000 years! Even if it be only 10,000 or 20,000 years, it belittles the antiquity of Egypt, Chaldea, Greece, Rome.

There is another test of the vast age of those clay figures (which, by the way, look as fresh as if made yesterday), and that is the fact that unenumerated thousands of years have passed since the bison ceased to inhabit the region of the Pyrenees. Now, it is virtually certain that the prehistoric artists represented in their drawings and sculptures only animals which were familiarly known to them. Mingled with pictures of bisons made by other men who were doubtless contemporary with this particular artist there are figures of a number of animals that have long been extinct in Europe.

His special claim to distinction resides in the fact that his work is the only known example of modeling in clay that has up to the present time ever been found in the hands of Paleolithic man. The clay that he worked over in his hands and restored to be seen there today. He left lumps of it which he had kneaded and thrown aside. The spot where he got the kind of clay that suited him, and scraped it together, has been found at another nearby part of the cavern.

His footmarks have been traced, together with what may have been trial sketches of his masterpieces. If the Greek Phidias had left such relics, the artistic world would go crazy over them. But this Stone Age Phidias seems to have been, for his time, a more original genius than he who adorned the Parthenon.

There is another world for thought in Professor George Macurdy's suggestion that the hidden chamber in the Tus d'Audoubert cave was, with its unique figures, a "paleolithic shrine," where the rude forefathers of our race made votive offerings to unknown higher powers.

Used to It

The hotel was much frequented by jovial commercials and the parson thought they had found a good butt for their humor in a stray clergyman, who took a room there.

Day in and day out, at table and in the smoking room, they tried their jests with irritating indifference.

"I wonder you stand those youngsters so well," said an older man, after a particularly foolish joke at dinner table. "How don't you hear what they say?"

The clergyman smiled gently round the grinning faces waiting for his reply.

"Oh, yes," he answered, "but then, you see, I am chaplain in a lunatic asylum, and so I'm used to this sort of thing."

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just get Hiker-Japnes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Ensenol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ears every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

Adventures in Saving

A YOUNG MAN'S STORY

THE company for which I am working pays me a fair salary, out of which I should save at least from four to five hundred dollars a year. Up until this present year I had accumulated a bank account. In the five years of my employment with this company I have almost made a failure of myself as far as saving was concerned.

Four years of the harvest of my labor was given over to shows, pool rooms, dances and other pleasures too numerous to mention. Each week I would try to console myself by saying that next week I would start and lay so much aside each week—but that time seemed to never come. At times I would try and convince myself that it was necessary that I should do these things to keep me in touch with the outside world.

Nearly a year ago my employer gave me a more responsible position, which required a better education, and also gave me the opportunity to invest my savings, of which I had none. I awoke to the fact that my four past years of labor were a most miserable failure. I had come to the conclusion that I could save, and that was to stay at home nights.

I purchased a few books. I studied grammar and English in my room. It was hard at first, but soon each picture on the wall and everything about the room became dear to me, for I knew it was playing its part of the game towards my success. It was surprising how rapidly I improved myself. And one of the greatest pleasures was to know that my bank account was growing each week.

One evening I had the privilege of visiting a pleasant and prosperous home. While seated in a comfortable chair conversing with my friend, his daughter, perhaps fourteen or fifteen years of age, came up to me with her hand outstretched. In it I saw a Dime Savings Bank, and realized at once that here was a child who had started on the right road. After spending a pleasant evening, I went to my room. Continually the little Dime Savings Bank was on my mind. The next morning before going to work, I stopped in front of a 5 and 10c store and purchased a similar bank. I finally bracing up, I boldly walked into the store, purchasing a Dime Savings Bank. I gave the girl a quarter and the change I received a ten-cent piece and a nickel.

After leaving the store, I dropped the dime into my bank. In six months I had saved $40 in dimes that I received in change.—Thanks to the little bank.

The time to start to save is now; there is no better time than the present. If you have some place you are going to that keeps your pocketbook empty, stay away. If there are unnecessary things that you think you need, pass them by and save your money. You can always buy, but you cannot always save. Will you start now, or wait for that week which never comes?

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Rossell says: "Lime starvation which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation." Among inorganic substances four salts appear to be of special physiological importance, but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the body can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results in many cases which appear to have yielded to it. As it contains no opiates, narcotic or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Sold by all Riker Drug Stores and leading druggists.

A HARD LUMP IN PIT OF STOMACH

Henry Gordon, of No. 82 McClellan St., Boston, Was in a Desperate State.

It is the engine room of a battleship that is the most strongly protected and most carefully watched and tended, for in the motive centre of the mighty leviathan it propels far and wide. The engine room of a battleship may be aptly likened to the stomach of a human being, for it is the seat of power and, like the engine, if it becomes impaired the rest of the body suffers also. Unlike an engine, though, many let the stomach get impaired and take no measures to repair it. This is utter folly, especially since it has been proved its ability to cure a disordered stomach, and has demonstrated that it can relieve the most obstinate cases of long-standing stomach, liver and kidney troubles and banish that scourge of humanity, rheumatism, from the blood.

"That this is proved conclusively it is only necessary for one to read the signed statements made by local people living of how Plant Juice has relieved them of ailments of long-standing. Following is the signed testimonial of Mr. Harry Gordon, of No. 82 McClellan street, a well-known and popular mechanist, who said:

"For several years I have suffered with stomach trouble, indigestion and, consequently, constipation. My food in my stomach and cause gas and bloating and I had a hard lump in the pit of my stomach all the time. I was in such a weak and miserable condition that I felt worn out. I was unable to do my work altogether. I had headaches, dizzy spells and was so nervous and restless I could not sleep at night and my liver was badly disordered. I had doctored and tried all kinds of medicines without getting any relief, and all I heard about Plant Juice. I have taken Plant Juice for 30 days and it has done me more good than all the other medicines and doctors combined. I have no more aches or pains, can eat any kind of food without distress and am feeling fine. I will recommend Plant Juice to everyone."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Co.'s Store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. On Saturday evening he will remain at the store until 10 P. M. to meet those who cannot call during the day.—Advertisement.

HEARST 'CALL TO CONSCIENCE' IS ENDORSED

Further endorsement of William Randolph Hearst's call to conscience was given in Boston today. Among those protesting the proposed $5 000 000 to $10 000 000 loan to the allies are the following:

F. J. KIESTEWACHER, manager of the H. T. Schaefer, Inc., No. 141 Milk street:

After the war was proclaimed, the President of the United States called upon the people of this country to be neutral. On August 15, 1914, in an inquiry from a New York financial firm upon the question of granting a small loan to the French government, the then Secretary of State, William J. Bryan, replied it was inadvisable for the finances of this country to be used in any sense for the conduct of a foreign war. He thus in no way opposed the German-Austrian element for its record in this country for patriotism and its share in its development, but has ignored and the attitude of this government at the present time is entirely to be. have British influences exercised in the most sanctified and insidious manner have biased the judgment of the public. This money about to be sent abroad could be used with great advantage in the development of this country and James J. Hill says the railroads of this country need a billion every year to keep them up.

EDWARD RUHE, president of the Massachusetts Breweries Company:

Personally I believe the loan to the allies, as proposed, is against the spirit of neutrality laid down by the President of the United States and when this is as I it comprehends all.

W. A. THURSTON, president of the Cuban Grape Fruit and Land Company, Boston:

There is no ground for prolonged hesitation in this whole matter. When we once have made the loan, it will be difficult to retrace our steps. Let us be patient now. We a peace-maker. I think he should maintain also its neutrality. As a financial transaction it is very problematical no matter who is to wind it up for financial circles. When once we have embarked upon such loans, no one can tell when they will end; it is better to say No at the beginning than when it is too late.

F. E. MUEHLEDER, of the Bayer Company, Inc., and treasurer of the German-American Alliance:

The proposed loan is certainly a breach of the neutrality which we have been urged again and again to maintain. It is therefore incomprehensible to me. We have our sympathies in certain directions but we should in the interest of maintaining them not have [illegible] investment of money which rightly belongs to the people of this country. As for the investment itself it is questionable in its safety. It has too many contingencies. I make it will continue the war and thus cause the doubt about the solvency of those I cannot conceive how we can call such a loan a fair and square proposition. It is a one-sided affair and not the impartial role it is undoubtedly taking.

PROFESSOR ALBERT BUSHNELL HART, Harvard University:

It is impossible to form an opinion as to the bill or dollar loan now asked of the United States by England and France. Great war loans are nothing new of course between nations in times of war. Great Britain, France and Germany have made great loans to fighting allies to further back than the Napoleonic wars of a few years ago. Germany went deep into the finances of her struggle. It is known now that the Russian-Japanese war would not have ended as soon if Russia's powerful influence had not interfered with Japan. Borrowing money in time [illegible] money-getting power was the way all to fair [illegible]

EARNING CALL, Woonsocket, R. I.:

Let it [illegible] remembered that Europe [illegible] Banking Bridge. Every contribution to its existence whether short or abroad, goes to support its institution of war. Europe's resources in war, its stupendous [illegible] the feeling of [illegible] to all be engaged in the great [illegible] strife. Therefore, we [illegible] be a fallacy apparent [illegible] and other objects connected [illegible] ammunition and other extraordinary commodities [illegible] send us $, after all we [illegible] Europe promises [illegible] the war. It is not [illegible] we hold ourselves responsible for the effect on the war of what we ship we must stop a [illegible] munitions and others will gobble it up and keep it after the war and the armed strife and butchery [illegible] over to all over side or on the other side. This is the fundamental [illegible] It is glossed over by the sophistry of well-meaning peace [illegible] but any man of ordinary [illegible] can get below the covering if he so desires.

TELEGRAPH, Nashua, N. H.:

Representatives of England and France [illegible] negotiating in New York for a loan of [illegible] millions of dollars and with every prospect of success. Pressure is being brought to [illegible] with Germany on the Welland Bridge to prevent the loan on the ground that it is not neutral. If the loan is made it will [illegible] harder to preserve German friendship for the United States, and it may prove at least indirectly, a casus belli.

Coal Mines Stripped of Workers by War

JOHNSTON Pa. Sept. 24.—Vice-President Charles O'Neil of District No. 2, bituminous field of the United Mine Workers of America, said today that this district would lose 15 miners short of the usual working forces as a result of the European war and the demand for men in steel and allied industries.

Thousands of men have gone to Europe to join the armies of their respective countries. While only a normal demand for coal is [illegible] says Mr. O'Neil, there will be a decided boom forces.

PROF. VAN RIPER TO WED FORMER PUPIL

A romance which began in a class room at Boston University has resulted in the engagement of Miss Mildred L. Kennard of No. 27 Cabot street, Newton, to Professor Benjamin W. Van Riper, formerly of Boston University.

In her junior year Miss Kennard attended Professor Van Riper's classes in psychology and philosophy. They were together frequently and their courtship was carried on in the class rooms.

Professor Van Riper is now a member of the faculty of Pennsylvania State College and has finances in an interest in the Eastern Illinois Normal School at Charleston, Ill. They are to be married in June.

Miss Kennard was graduated from Boston University last June a month after Professor Van Riper resigned after religious differences with President Marlatt.

Professor Van Riper was very popular with the students, and was honored on the evening of Miss Kennard at student functions.

Miss Kennard, who is twenty-four, played on the tennis and basketball teams during her four years at Boston University, and for three years was in editor of the Beacon, the students' publication. She also directed the staging of the students' annual play three successive years.

Before going to Boston University in 1912 Professor Van Riper was a teacher of chemistry at Wesleyan College, and later taught philosophy at Lincoln, Neb. He is thirty.

ELI WARRIORS USE BOWL IN PRACTICE

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 24.—The Yale squad today will practice for the first time this season in the new bowl, which will be used during the remainder of the season, except when an occasional rainy day makes the turf too soft to allow its being risked for practice.

The varsity went down to defeat yesterday at the hands of the scrubs, in the fiercest scrimmage of the season. The regulars were unable to penetrate the line of the reserves consistently. At one time they were held for downs only three yards from the goal.

Several times the varsity was compelled to punt rather than take its chance at losing the ball. The varsity's interference was ragged and the general showing was disappointing.

The scrub attack netted good ground and a new backfield trio, consisting of Harry Legors, Stanley Metcalf and Sam Duryee, often fooled the regulars.

Duryee broke his hand and retired in favor of Bentley, who was the varsity quarterback until Tom Lowrey displaced him last week. An examination disclosed the fact that one of the small bones in Duryee's right hand was fractured and he will be out of the game until well into October.

Shea In for Tigers Against Georgetown

PRINCETON, Sept. 24.—Princeton's coaches are trying hard to whip their squad into shape for the opening game with Georgetown in Palmer Stadium tomorrow. Head Coach Rush had his charges out for nearly three hours when the final scrimmage practice was held previous to the opening of the season.

The scrimmage was a short, snappy one. The varsity had possession of the ball during most of the tussle, and scored three times on the second team. Ed Shea, who was shifted from an end position to the backfield a few days ago, played at right halfback for the varsity and showed himself to possess even more ability behind the line than he did in the line.

Shea attacked the line hard and tore through the scrubs for a number of good gains. Shea will probably start the game at right half.

Somerville Lad Breaks Arm.

Albert Roche, one of Somerville High's leading candidates, broke his arm in practice and is out for the season. Halfback Keating is back with the eleven. Coach Morey has a squad of fifty odd players and is confident of gaining a victory over Marlboro High tomorrow.

Columbia Rings Up Curtain.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Columbia University, which placed the ban on football in 1905, resumed practice, and a squad of 35 was tried out by Coach Nelson Metcalf from which Thorp, captain of the 1905 eleven, was among the old stars watching the practice.

LAST PRACTICE ON AT STADIUM

THE final practice of the week and the last chance Head Coach Haughton will have to whip his varsity squad in shape for the Colby game, will be held this afternoon in the Stadium. The showing made by the varsity yesterday was a very sad one and is giving the Crimson coaching staff a great deal of worry.

AFTER two weeks of practice the varsity should be capable of putting up a better defensive game than it displayed yesterday. The Blacks simply tore the Reds to pieces. The ends were made to look like a couple of candidates for some high school team, while the manner in which the Blacks successfully executed forward passes is anything but a boost to the Crimson varsity secondary defence men.

THE varsity allowed Murray Taylor altogether too much time before closing in on him. Only once did the rush line charge through and upset the Blacks' quarter before he got his forward pass under way. On that one occasion the varsity looked like a real machine.

TO Ellison of the second team goes the honor of being the first man to score a touchdown on the varsity this Fall. The score was the outcome of a tidy forward pass from Taylor. Ellison was standing on the line when he received the ball. The play was a fine one, especially on Ellison's part, for the second team was not supposed to make the play, but the man for whom the ball was intended was put out of the play, and because he had his head up and his eyes open Ellison achieved the honor of crossing the varsity's line for the initial touchdown of the season.

TOM THACHER, who is one of the most promising backfield candidates on the varsity squad, did not take part in yesterday's practice. During the scrimmage Wednesday Thacher gave his neck and right shoulder a very severe wrenching and "Pooch" Donevan told him to remain away from the practice until Monday. Last Fall Thacher was out of the game for a while with yellow jaundice.

R. C. CURTIS and J. A. Gilman spent the afternoon running around the field. Both boys circled the enclosure ten times. It is announced that Gilman had successfully passed the examination in "trig" and would be eligible for the varsity. The news that Gilman had straightened out his difficulty with the office was received with great joy among the coaches and undergraduates.

WILLIE WILLCOX and Wingate Rollins pulled off spectacular runs during the practice. After catching a punt on his own 20-yard line Rollins dodged through the entire second eleven for a 70-yard run and a touchdown. Willcox slipped around left end for a 60-yard dash, during which the varsity displayed some real football knowledge, spilling man after man who went to bring the runner down.

MOSELEY TAYLOR, who is being tried out at centre on the B team, is shaping up better and better every day. Taylor is an exceptionally fast man despite his enormous size, and during the practice scrimmages he is nearly always down under the punts with the ends.

MANDOT HAS SLIM SHADE ON DUNDEE

By ED CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, came up here and battled Johnny Dundee in the ten-round star bout on Tribune Field last evening and Joseph wound up with a slight shade in his favor. It was one of the fastest bouts ever seen here.

For five rounds the nimble gladiators just flitted around like butterflies, tapping and missing, but missing in masterful style. In the sixth Mandot began to step in front, for he got his famous one-two punch working without a miss. At least four times in succession he pulled this lightning stunt, and as fast as Johnny was, he could not stop the punches.

In the last three rounds Mandot kept stepping along to the lightning pace set by Dundee, and it was a case of slam for slam. In the final round Dundee cut Mandot's left ear badly, but Joe bore in just the same. It was a battle that proved fitting enough to wind up open-air boxing in Brooklyn, also exciting enough to make a twenty-round bout between the pair worth traveling many miles to witness.

In the semi-final, Frankie Callahan defeated Joe Azevedo in a rough-and-tumble ten-round bout.

Tufts Has Squad of 45.

Practice started at Tufts with a peppery squad of 45 going on the campus. Nellis went over for the first touchdown. His companions in the backfield were Drummy, Swanson and Bratt. Parks, Westcott, Mitchell and Doane went in later. Thorndike, Stankard, Butler and Stanton all played strong game in the line. Near the end of the practice Doane wrenched his knee and limped off the field.

Capt. Barrett Keeps It Up.

ITHACA, Sept. 24.—Captain Barrett and Collins again showed plenty of form on the offence and the Cornell varsity scored practically at will against the second eleven. Barrett and Eckley also pulled off several spicy forward passes, while Fullback Heller plowed through the line in fine fashion. Cornell plays its first game next Tuesday with Gettysburg.

TACKLE GILMAN CAN PLAY ON VARSITY

J. A. Gilman, tackle on Harvard's 1913 varsity, has been declared in good standing by the Faculty and is eligible to try for a place on the eleven. The case of R. S. C. King will be acted upon tomorrow.

In the scrimmage between the "A" teams of the Harvard varsity and second squads on Soldiers Field it was clearly demonstrated that the first varsity eleven is a very weak aggregation defensively right at present.

The fine showing made by the Blacks, both on the defence and offence, caused the varsity players to be jerked up on numerous occasions by Head Coach Haughton and his assistants.

During the entire scrimmage the Blacks played all around the Reds and the ease with which the seconds broke through the varsity line, skirted the ends and pulled of forward and double passes for substantial gains was the source of much displeasure to the first string men and the coaches.

As a fitting climax to the afternoon's playing the Blacks scored a touchdown just before they were called off the field. The tally resulted from a fine forward pass, Murray Taylor to Ellison, the latter stretching out for a pretty catch and dashing across the goal line.

Before the second squad was called onto the field the varsity was given a long drill on defensive formations and, although the men appeared to understand what was expected of them, it was soon plainly evident they are woefully weak on the defence.

"KEN" PARSON HOLDS.

The "A" teams of the varsity and second squad were lined up on the varsity's 45 yard line, with the Reds in possession of the ball. After two unsuccessful attempts to penetrate the Black line, Captain Mahan punted to Murray Taylor who was downed in his tracks by Soucy. After shooting two plays at "Ken" Parson without making any noticeable advance, Taylor tried a forward pass, but his aim was bad and the ball was taken back.

With seven yards to gain and fourth down, Taylor called for another forward pass and this time the play went through to perfection, Ellison received the pass and before he was thrown by McKinlock the Blacks were fifteen yards nearer the goal line.

Next, the seconds tried a double pass, but Taylor fumbled and miscued the play, but the seconds recovered the ball and then Taylor punted out of bounds. McKinlock shot through right tackle for eight yards and Soucy slipped around his own left end for five more and first down.

At this stage Captain Mahan, from a punt formation, ran through the entire Black team for a touchdown covering 45 yards in pulling off a spectacular run.

The ball was put in play again on the varsity's 20-yard line and plunges by Whitney and McKinlock, coupled with several clever end runs by Mahan and Soucy, carried the ball down the field to the second's 20-yard line from where Mahan tried a goal from the field. His effort missed, the ball going a little off to the right of the uprights.

VARSITY SHOWN UP.

It was at this point that the seconds began to "show up" the varsity. Right at the start a forward pass, Taylor to Gerumky, netted the Blacks 25 yards, the former Latin School boy gaining 15 yards after he received the pass.

On the next play the Blacks made the varsity men look very foolish. Taylor pulled off a neat double pass and so cleverly did the Blacks execute the play the varsity was wholly at a loss as to who had the ball and the result was a 20-yard gain for the Blacks.

The next three rushes were directed at the varsity's line and, when the ball had been worked up inside the fifteen-yard line Taylor shot a forward pass to Ellison, who slipped across for the first touchdown that has been scored against the Harvard varsity this season.

During the remainder of the practice between the "A" teams the playing was all in favor of the Blacks, and it was a sad-looking lot of varsity players that trooped off the field when Head Coach Haughton called a halt and sent the "B" teams to work.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS
BY RIGHT FIELD

"SMOKY JOE" WOOD'S appearance on the slab wasn't really a "comeback," for he hasn't strictly been away. He had a mark of 12 wins and 4 losses when his arm gave out and he started home from Cleveland August 27, when the Sox were on their last Western trip. Now the arm is rested and he steps into the fining line and boosts his average of wins another notch.

WOODIE didn't try to burn up the opposition. He just went in there to see how the old "souper" would stand by in a regular game after a long layoff. The "wing" was tiring a bit when he retired after finishing seven innings, but his work had given the Sox a lift. Probably he will get into some more of the regularly scheduled games and into the Big Clash, besides keeping up his daily workouts.

ABOUT the only thing Wood glamorized by his appearance against the Indians was his batting average. That got no nourishment whatever, but his six assists in seven innings are a lift to his fielding figures. His control was all right, for he only passed one. He wasn't trying for any strikeout records, or for stinginess in hits, but two of the foe fanned and six hits was the best the Indians could achieve.

WOOD has pitched 149 1-3 innings this year, with 29 runs and 70 hits achieved by the hostiles. He has fanned 58 and passed 42. His position at the top of the American League heap is secure.

SO Roth, the Indian centrefielder has joined the band of swat-smiths who have busted the ball teetotally out of Fenway Park? Howsomever, he has nothing on Duffy Lewis, "Jake" Stahl, who used to swing so hard the breeze rocked the grandstand; "Rube" Oldring, "Cactus" Cravath, "Heinie" Zimmerman, Clarence Walker of the Browns, who accomplished the feat twice, Joe Wood and "Babe" Ruth. Also there is Hugh Bradley, who disappeared from the local payroll not long after he achieved notice by being the first player to slam one over the barrier.

LETTER comes in from J. O'Neil, a Dorchester "fan," which is rather long, but full of loyalty to the Red Sox. Mr. O'Neil opines that loyal home crowd "rooting" helped the Red Sox through the crisis of their pennant fight. Most of the players agree with him.

NOW comes the management of the Yanks and denies the impeachment that they have drawn "Iron" Bolle in the draft.

HAVERHILL man writes in for a sample team that the Macks might take four out of seven from. Well, let's make him up a team. Put "Hub" Perdue down for cleanup batter.

Maine Off to Play Yale.

ORONO, Sept. 24.—The University of Maine squad, including eighteen players and led by Coach Tommy Hughitt left for New Haven today, where Yale is to be met tomorrow. The team is fairly heavy and in fair form. Coach Hughitt gives out the first lineup as follows:

Berry or Dale, L. e.; Mouton, l. t.; Greeley, l. g.; Carey, c.; Allen, r. g.; Ruffner (captain), r. t.; Pingree, r. e.; Speed, q. b.; Kirk, l. h. b.; Gorham, r. h. b.; Kitter, f. b.

LEWIS BANKS ON KNOCKING OUT BRITTON

WHILE the Atlas A. A. management is to be commended for bringing Jack Britton of Chicago and Ted (Kid) Lewis of England together in a return match of twelve rounds, the fuss being carded for next Tuesday night, it should see that both sides put up substantial forfeits guaranteeing that the prescribed weight notch of 135 pounds is going to be made, or let the public in on the true weights. Last time Britton didn't weigh in at all; there was a delay of fully half an hour in settling a squabble that disgusted the better element of the club's members. Lewis can make 135 pounds without any trouble. Britton may also be able to make it. But if the notch isn't going to be made the public should be in on the information, as truth it is that the encounter won't lose any of its lustre even if the two boys come in as welterweights.

THE battle is not only interesting on account of its international tinge, but looms up as just about the best there is in sight in the low-welterweight class. Then, Britton has no love for Lewis and Lewis is anything but stuck on Jack. At their recent scrap at the Atlas, Danny Morgan brought over his own referee, "Patsy" Haley. Probably some seven-tenths of the "fans" thought Britton entitled to the award, but Haley slipped it to Lewis. The Britisher is to be commended for his gameness in giving Britton another crack at him in a spot where decisions are rendered, as it's not worse than even money that the Chicagoan spills him for the verdict this trip.

Fifty years ago the founders of this house established themselves in the tailoring business in New York City and soon became known as the leaders in style and workmanship.

Soon the tailors throughout the United States were using Six Little Tailor patterns and ideas, paying gladly for the privilege of doing so.

The founders then branched out and established tailoring shops in most of the big cities in America, where they met with tremendous success, reserving for themselves the exclusive use of their own tailoring, styles and ideas.

Since then the business has remained in the same family—from fathers to sons, always improving and abreast of the times, leaders in styles and champions of big values for low prices.

OPEN EVENINGS

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were higher as a rule at the opening in New York, but gains did not average large. A few issues were exceptions and advanced a point or more. The market had the usual general aspect as yesterday. The bulk of trading was in motor and munition stocks. A few railroads began higher, and a number were then unchanged. There was not a plentiful supply of stocks for sale. U. S. Steel opened a fraction higher and was closely watched. Its price course is regarded a potent influence upon standard issues. There is disappointment that the latter have not responded more to an improvement in the country's business, increased rail earnings, crop prospects and other favorable factors.

It is denied there has been any hitch in foreign loan negotiations. Progress is being made at the conferences of bankers and envoys, it is claimed. Speculators and business interests are waiting for some definite information as to what has been accomplished. Less is said about the prospect of an announcement soon that an agreement has been reached. Soon after the opening Baldwin Locomotive sold at a record high price. But the majority of the majority of industrials, which have become prominent because of war orders or increased domestic business, was limited.

PRICES SOON EASED OFF.

There was an easing off of prices soon after the start. Studebaker and Maxwell losing all their advance and then receding further. This was also true of Westinghouse and several more industrials. The reaction left the list irregular, but with the majority of the list showing gains.

Advances at the end of fifteen minutes included American Can ⅝, American Smelting ¾, U. S. Steel ¼, Car & Foundry ½, American Loco. 1, Baldwin 1⅜, Bethlehem 2, Colorado Fuel ⅝, Crucible ¼, General Motors 2, Mexican Petroleum ¼, N. Y. Air Brake ½, Pressed Steel ¾, Republic Steel ⅝, Tennessee Copper ⅜, Baltimore & Ohio ⅜, Lehigh Valley, ex-dividend ¾, N. Y. Central ¼, Northern Pacific ⅛, Reading ⅛, Southern Pacific ⅜, and Union Pacific ¼.

Among declines were American Sugar ¾, Beet Sugar ⅜, Goodrich ¼, Maxwell ½, Studebaker ⅛ and Westinghouse ¼.

At the end of half an hour N. Y. Central sold at its highest for this year to date. Tennessee Copper was an active as well as a strong issue. Its turnover was up 2¼. There was a good volume of business in the New York market for the first hour. The market tone was better in the latter part of the period.

LOCAL MARKET STILL DULL.

There was no feature on the Boston market at the beginning or afterwards. Trading was of small scope and confined to 3 issues, Pittsburgh, Norfolk and Baltimore. For the remainder,

20,000 Miles in 12 Months

What the "Battery Service System" Has Done for a Spokane Transfer Company

Every Boston business man should read the self-explanatory letter below. It shows how the "Battery Service System" overcomes Electric truck mileage limitations. Very few Boston merchants or plant managers need 20,000 miles a year from a motor truck, but the "Battery Service System" is the solution where more than average mileage is desired. Even if you make a very long trip but twice a week, it pays to buy a properly equipped G. V. Truck and place it on Battery Service.

Remember—the Electric moves goods at the lowest possible cost in its field

SPOKANE, WASH.

August Seventeenth Nineteen Fifteen

The Washington Water Power Co.
Spokane, Washington.
Gentlemen:—

This is to advise you that the one-ton General Vehicle Electric Truck purchased of you August 17, 1914, and operated on your battery service, has traveled 20,000 miles.

The cost to us, including complete garaging, battery service, tires, and all other incidental expense, has been $1176.03, or $.05867 per mile.

It is doing the work previously done by three teams and wagons.

Yours truly,

PACIFIC TRANSFER CO.

By J. M. Watkins
Pres.

The Pacific Transfer truck works 18 hours per day. This can be done in Boston, too. In Hartford there are 17 one-truck users, mostly small merchants, who do all their delivering with one truck through the increased mileage supplied by the "Battery Service System."

Among the new users of trucks on the "Battery Service System" are coal merchants in Boston, department stores in Baltimore, and a big bakery in San Francisco.

The Adams Express Company has just purchased for one city alone 24 more 2-ton G. V. Electrics, giving them 165 G. V. Trucks.

One storage warehouse company has purchased eight (at once) and will sell all horses.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE;
OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Let Us Decline to Promote or Prolong This War; Let Us Rather Earnestly Endeavor to Stop It

VERY soon after the war broke out it became evident that each of the belligerents would be short of money before many months had elapsed.

It was also evident that sooner or later loans would be sought in America.

The prevailing opinion was that Germany and Austria would be first to seek loans, since England, France and Russia had piled up nearly twice as much gold in preparation for war as had the Teutonic empires.

In no long time it turned out that a German loan was sought to be floated in this country. Under these circumstances—the Germans actually seeking a loan and England and France being probable loan seekers—certain American bankers inquired of the Administration whether the Government would look with tolerance upon the making of war loans by Americans to foreign belligerent powers.

The answer was an emphatic negative.

In exact words of Mr. Wilson these bankers were told that any efforts to finance loans for belligerents during the progress of the war "WOULD BE INCONSISTENT WITH THE SPIRIT OF NEUTRALITY."

The Hearst newspapers were in hearty accord with many of President Wilson's utterances during the early period of the war. They were in accord with President Wilson's public appeal to all Americans to preserve strictly impartial neutrality.

They were in accord with President Wilson's express, official statement that a PROHIBITION of the shipment of arms and munitions to belligerents outside our borders was "THE BEST PRACTICE OF NATIONS IN THE MATTER OF NEUTRALITY."

They were in accord with President Wilson's earnest appeal to all Americans TO JOIN IN PRAYER AND IN EFFORT TO BRING ABOUT PEACE IN EUROPE.

They were in accord with the declaration made by Secretary Bryan in his letter to Chairman Stone of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that to float war loans for either of the warring Powers in America "WOULD BE INCONSISTENT WITH THE SPIRIT OF NEUTRALITY." Secretary Bryan in his letter to Senator Stone was speaking for the Administration.

Where Hearst publications stood THEN, they stand NOW.

As Mr. Hearst said in his direct appeal to President Wilson on August 11:

"We are not partisan in our 'principle,' President Wilson.

"We are not Pro-German or Pro-British, Mr. President.

"We stand for abstract principle and for its CONCRETE APPLICATION IN NEUTRAL, IMPARTIAL AND ABSOLUTELY JUST AND RIGHTEOUS MANNER."

Those are the grounds upon which the Hearst newspapers stood with the Administration in the early period of the war.

That the Hearst newspapers no longer stand in company with the Administration upon those grounds of fair neutrality and national righteousness is not the fault of the Hearst newspapers.

They stand now exactly where both they and the Administration then stood. The attitude of the Administration has changed—the attitude of the Hearst papers has not.

The Administration no longer deems it the "best practice of nations in the matter of neutrality" to discourage the exportation of arms and munitions to foreign belligerents.

It believes in encouraging not only the ordinary manufacture and sale of weapons and ammunition, but the most EXTRAORDINARY efforts to supply belligerents with these means of murder in IMMENSE QUANTITIES.

It no longer believes that floating foreign war loans in the United States is "inconsistent with the spirit of neutrality."

The Administration has just let it be known through the Secretary of State that the Government looks with favor upon the efforts of the British Commission to negotiate in this country the unprecedented war loan of a thousand million dollars.

That the Administration is no longer in favor of praying for peace we will not affirm.

But we do affirm that a prayer for peace is an insult to the ear of God when the Administration employs its power to promote the shipments of arms and the loans of millions, which alone make the prolongation of war possible and which alone prevent the early making of peace.

These statements are not partisan political declamation. They are plain statements of "INDISPUTABLE AND UNDISPUTED FACTS." If the people of the United States want the European war prolonged, they can prolong it for months, possibly for years.

All they need to do is to supply the European governments with ammunition and money.

The European governments will supply the men to be butchered.

They will supply the victims of wholesale murder, if we will make the weapons of wholesale murder and lend the money to continue the murderous use of those weapons in the full force of their destructiveness over a sufficiently protracted period.

What else can be said of the attempt to borrow one thousand millions in this country save that it is an attempt to prolong the war, and to make the war even more hideously murderous and destructive than it is?

The exact truth is that Mr. Morgan and his foreign allies ask the neutral people of the United States to supply four civilized nations of Europe with the money and the weapons to destroy two other civilized nations.

The people of the United States are asked to do for England, France, Italy and Russia exactly what the Japanese are doing.

The Japanese Premier told the Japanese Diet last week that at the peace conference Japan would certainly insist on her share of the spoils if the allies were victorious, BECAUSE JAPAN HAD RENDERED MORE EFFICIENT AID TO HER ALLIES BY MANUFACTURING WEAPONS AND AMMUNITION THAN SHE COULD HAVE BY SENDING HER ARMY AND NAVY TO THEIR HELP.

And what Japan, a confessed ally and declared belligerent, is doing is exactly what we are told it is our neutral duty to do.

A plain-thinking, honest man is hard put to it to distinguish the difference between hostility and neutrality, WHEN BOTH RENDER EXACTLY THE SAME SERVICE TO THE SAME BELLIGERENTS, THOUGH ONE IS A DECLARED ALLY AND THE OTHER A PROFESSED NEUTRAL.

This newspaper abhors a profession of virtue which is diametrically opposed by the professor's deeds.

As Mr. Hearst said in the appeal to the President to which we have referred:

"If we cannot be conscientious, let us at least be consistent."

And again, as he said in the same editorial:

"But this newspaper is in favor of peace, and it believes that THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES are in favor of peace.

"It believes with President Wilson that these people of ours are sincerely devoted to 'principle,' and it believes that they do not care whether the operation of that principle embarrasses Germany and benefits England or whether it embarrasses England and benefits Germany, as long as it is a just and righteous principle."

The Hearst newspapers today take the same view of any effort to float foreign war loans in this country that President Wilson and the Hearst newspapers both took ten months ago.

We regard any effort to float such a war loan as wholly "inconsistent with the spirit of neutrality."

The "principle" which President Wilson said was right then, we affirm to be the right principle now.

We cannot and we will not change our principles to suit shifting conditions and impending elections.

The attempt to negotiate a war loan to Germany we regarded with the President as an act "inconsistent with the spirit of neutrality."

Now that the boot is on the other foot, we regard the attempt to negotiate a war loan for Germany's enemies as being just exactly as "inconsistent with the spirit of neutrality."

Our neutrality is not reserved for occasions.

It is the right neutrality, the just neutrality, the true American neutrality which would scrupulously refrain from aiding Germany with arms and money to beat England, and would as scrupulously refrain from aiding England with arms and money to beat Germany.

We do not see how any right-thinking American can take any other stand. The American financiers who are endeavoring to put one thousand million American gold dollars into the war chest of Great Britain are neither neutral nor patriotic Americans.

As things are going, and with no guilt of blood on our hands, the financial domination of the world is surely coming within our grasp.

The British pound, the French franc, the German mark are all falling in value compared with the American dollar.

Thus a great and favorable exchange profit comes to the legitimate manufacturer and producer of the United States.

These Wall Street financiers propose that we shall actually strip ourselves of the one huge innocent advantage of the war, in order to secure the payment of blood-money to the makers of the weapons of murder and to prolong indefinitely the grief and guilt of the war.

Against this unpatriotic, this unprofitable, this unneutral, this inhuman course of proposed conduct we protest in the name of neutrality, in the name of patriotism, in the name of humanity, and, finally, in the name of civilization itself, thus menaced and imperilled and rapidly being brought face to face with the destruction of all its gains through so many wonderful centuries of the white man's struggles and achievements. If we believe in the God to whom we pray, in the religion which we profess, in the principles of the beneficent government under which we live, let us do no single thing to prolong this dreadful war. Let us, on the contrary, inspired with a deep sense of duty and devotion, do everything that can be done honorably and impartially to end this dreadful war.
